

Update on White River Work Camp Location for the East-West Tie Line Project

June 30, 2020

NextBridge and Valard, constructors of the East-West Tie Line Transmission Project, are committed to ensuring maximized economic activity locally during the construction of this important electricity infrastructure Project. We are also committed to listening to local communities and ensuring all permits and approvals are in place to allow for construction activity to take place. As such, we are abandoning our originally proposed worker camp location at Picnic Lake and will continue to search for an alternate location in White River.

We thank the community members who shared their thoughts on the initially proposed site, both those who supported and those who opposed the site. While NextBridge and Valard continue to believe a work camp could have been constructed at Picnic Lake while addressing community concerns, our focus will now shift to identifying a site that can be developed in time to support the East-West Tie Line Transmission Project construction schedule, while keeping this highly sought-after component of the project in the Township of White River.

Thank you.
